AGREEMENT 1: Partner Understanding on Communications

The need for regular and frequent communications between IMHO and all partner organizations is crucial to the success not only of current efforts, but also the success of all future efforts undertaken in partnership. As a nonprofit organization based in the United States that relies almost entirely on private donations, IMHO's relationship with its donor community and the public at-large is vital to our ability to fund efforts abroad. While it is the responsibility of IMHO to report back to its donor on the activities and progress of its projects in Sri Lanka and other countries, IMHO relies on its partner organizations to provide accurate, complete, and regular reports on their efforts at the ground level. Only in this way can IMHO effectively market to its donors the importance of the nonprofit work it does in partnership with local NGOs, hospitals, clinics, etc. and the effect such efforts have had on improving the lives of the communities which we collectively serve. Such information is also vital for our legal and financial accounting.

Furthermore, as an organization committed to supporting initiatives that promote the health and well being of others, the type of projects that IMHO undertakes sometimes do not produce tangible results which can be captured by photo or video. It is for this very reason that it is of the utmost importance for IMHO's partner organizations to strictly adhere to the guidelines set forth in our Partner Application Form and Project Report Form, and to remain in frequent communication with the IMHO Team.

All communications should be directed to both the IMHO Treasurer (treasurer@theimho.org) and the IMHO Programs Coordinator (coordinator@theimho.org).

IMHO also encourages its local partners to use technology to their advantage and exploit such resources as digital cameras, videos, the internet (including email and the creation or development of each partner organization's website), etc. to help share their efforts, their message, and the value of the work being done. As IMHO is committed to helping build the capacity of local partner organizations, IMHO is willing to work with each organization in this regard.

IMHO encourages all of its partners to consider the benefit and value of not only the current partnership as it pertains to any one particular project, but also the benefit and value of all potential future efforts as well. All future support hinges on the need for all local partners to be in frequent communication with IMHO in the long-term. We cannot do our work without your compliance.

By signing below, the undersigned agrees that he/she has read and thoroughly understands the importance of this statement and the need for and provision of regular, frequent, accurate, and complete reporting and communications.

AGREEMENT 3: Partner Agreement on Duplicate Funding

On behalf of [enter organization name]: _____,

I do hereby certify that the applicant organization that I represent and which has submitted a Partner Application for support to IMHO has not received, nor has any plans to receive or solicit, any other funds or support towards the same particular project requests contained within our application.

In the event that duplicate funds or financial support are provided by another funding source for the same project requests contained within our application, our organization will notify IMHO in writing within two (2) weeks. I understand that it is at the discretion of IMHO and its Board of Directors to determine if the funds should be returned, or if the funds can be reallocated towards another purpose. In such an event, it shall be the responsibility of our organization to provide in writing a list of alternative ideas and suggestions for the reallocation of the funds.

I understand that failure to share such information of duplication of funding with IMHO and its Board of Directors within a two-week period could constitute fraud and agree to make every effort to avoid such a situation.
